ELI Graded Readers

The new ELI Readers present themselves as narrative texts of great literary prominence with a strong identity, whether they are classics, adapted or whole, or originals.

The different sections which complement the text (notes about the author, analyses, activities...) aim to enrich reading and facilitate understanding and language learning, without diminishing the pleasure of reading.

The new ELI Readers are divided into four series: First ELI Readers, Young ELI Readers, Teen ELI Readers, Young Adult ELI Readers, according to the age of the readers and their language level, are in line with the indications set out in the Common European Framework of Reference for Language and include useful language certification exercises.

The new ELI Readers are available in seven languages: English, French, German, Spanish, Italian, Russian and Chinese.

Methodology

The four series present different methodological traits according to their language level.

Young ELI Readers:

- Five pages of exercises for revision at the end of each book.
- An illustrated dictionary, on the inside of the cover, keeps the vocabulary the student needs within sight at all times.
- Fun cut-out bookmarks personalize each book.

Teen ELI Readers Young Adult ELI Readers:

- The Before You Read Activities section contains pre-reading activities.
- The After-Reading Activities section, at the end of each chapter, eases memorization and comprehension and rounds off with one or more Pre-Reading activities to pre-teach the vocabulary and structures in the subsequent chapter.
- Useful dossiers focusing on culture and the author are supplied in the classics series.
- The Test yourself section offers activities which take into account the whole story.

Language Skills

Reading, speaking, writing and listening skills are fully practised and developed through exercises specifically designed for each skill. The text, either whole or partial, is narrated by native speakers.

The Design

Some of today's most interesting illustrators have been chosen to illustrate each of the titles in the series with a visual 'commentary' designed to aid comprehension and draw the student into the stories. The clear and captivating design of these elegant books not only simplifies the task of understanding the text but also makes them a pleasure to hold and read.

The dossiers provide extra multidisciplinary information on topics related to the historical, geographical and cultural contexts of the volume. In the Classics series, notes about the author complete the dossier.

The following evening, they did the show again and the sponsors loved it too. There was a man from a big advertising company. He came and spoke to Isabel after the show.

"You'll never guess!" said Isabel to the others. She was so excited, she was jumping up and down. "That guy does videos for sports stuff and he's asked me to go for an audition" after the Christmas holidays!

"Wow! That's fantastic! Do they need a sax player too?" said Gavin laughing.

"Let's all go clubbing!" said Max. "We've all worked really hard and we need some fun."

"They had a great night at the club. Only thing was, Gavin didn't know that the boss of the pub where he worked was at the club too that night."

FOCUS ON...

Robert Louis Stevenson (1850-1894)

Early life and Education

Robert Louis Stevenson was a Scottish novelist, poet and travel writer. He was born on November 13th 1850 in Edinburgh, the capital of Scotland. His grandfather, father and uncle were Scottish engineers and were famous for building lighthouses. His mother was Margaret Isabella. Robert wasn't a very strong child. He was very thin and was often ill. As a child, his turns, Comely, often read stories to him when he was ill, and this is where his love of books probably started. He loved, as soon as he could read and write, to spend a lot of his childhood writing stories. He often had to stay at home because he was ill, and was taught by private teachers for much of his childhood until his health improved.

In 1862 Robert went to Edinburgh University to study engineering, but it was obvious from the start that he wasn't interested in this subject. However, each year, during the holidays he would travel around Scotland with his father to see the lighthouses his family had built. He went to places like Orkney and Shetland and spent three weeks on the island of Larnard in 1867. He enjoyed these trips because they gave him lots of ideas for his books. Robert then told his family that he no longer wanted to study engineering and wanted to be a writer. His father was obviously disappointed, so Robert agreed to study law at university, so that at least he would have a safe income. In 1875, Robert became ill again and went to stay in France to a few resorts where it was warmer. Then he came back to Scotland and started studying again, but he often returned to France and visited France and got published. In Paris, he finished studying at university in 1875 but he never worked as a lawyer, and only used his knowledge of this subject in his books.

Later Life

After his father died in 1882, he went back to America, hoping that the better weather would help his health. Then, in June 1883, he sailed from San Francisco and started a voyage in the Pacific that lasted three years. During this time, he visited many islands, his health improved a bit and he continued to write. In 1890, Robert bought some land in Samoa, an island in Samoa and decided to stay there. He helped the Samoan people in many ways and they loved him. They used to call him "Tasi'faki" that in Samoan means "big/elder". He died on 3rd December 1894 and is buried on Mount Vesuvius in Salerno.

Robert, the writer

After finishing university, Robert spent all his time travelling and writing. One of his trips to France and Belgium gave him the idea for his first book. An illness happened during this trip, he met Lanny who do not know, an American woman who had left her husband and came to live in France with her children. Robert fell in love with her and when she returned to California in 1871, he decided to join her there the following year, even if the sea was a good beach. He wrote about his journey from Scotland to California in his book, The Amateur Gentleman and Robert got married in 1881, and their first months together are described in his book, Stowaway.

In August 1883, he sailed back to Britain with Lanny. The sport that had been most popular in the field a place to stay that would help improve his health. During this time, he wrote his first famous books: Travels Through Iceland (1885) an adventure story about politics, Strange Case of Dr Jekyll and Mr Hyde (1886) about a London lawyer who tries to understand the strange things that happen between his odd friend Dr Jekyll and the evil friend Hyde, and the Historical Adventure Story, Followed written the same year. He was the famous writer and earned enough money to have a comfortable life.

Non-Fiction

The ELI Readers catalogue offers a vast selection of non-fiction volumes, or to be more precise, the type of text that whilst not being fiction, nonetheless, are of literary value.

These texts are suitable for presenting situations, daily-life facts, problems about life, biographies or descriptions of cities.

ELI proposes: Great Friends, a volume that describes friendship in various contexts: between cartoon characters, actors, musicians or historians, between man and animals. Each double spread looks in detail at the value of a story and quotations emphasise the theme it deals with.

Dear Diary offers snippets from a famous diary, that of Anne Frank, to those of less-known diaries such as Bob Dylan or Salvador Dali.

Loving London and Enjoy New York introduce the reader to these two cities in a fresh, lively way, offering original news and intriguing facts.

Aesop's Fables

Adaptation and activities

by Jane Cadwallader.

Illustrated by Gustavo Mazali.

A lion trapped in a net and an ant in a puddle. Who will rescue them and so gain a new friend?

These are two stories from the Aesop's Fables collection, which have stood the test of time and been read and loved by generations all over the world. At their heart, the stories have important lessons. The first is that, when we need help, it can come from the most unexpected of places! The second is an illustration of Aesop's own saying: 'No act of kindness, no matter how small, is ever wasted.'

Hans Christian Andersen Hans Christian Andersen's Stories

Adaptation and activities by Jane Cadwallader.

Illustrated by Gustavo Mazali.

These are two of Hans Christian Andersen's most popular stories.

In The ugly duckling the farmyard animals reject a little duck because he is different. In The princess and the pea beautiful princesses turn out to have not very beautiful characteristics and a poor girl turns out to be a true princess. In both stories children are led to be sympathetic to the unpopular characters. The lessons behind the stories are important for children. Think for yourselves, be kind and don't jump to conclusions; you can't always go by appearances!

Two Stories About Soup

Retold by Jane Cadwallader.
Illustrated by Gustavo Mazali.

These are two traditional stories around getting the ingredients to make soup.

In the second, of central European origin, how can a poor man make a delicious soup? Both stories have a strong strand of humour but underlying them are important messages about being ready to ask for and to give help, about the importance of teamwork ... Oscar Wilde
The Giant Rumbledumble

*Retold by Jane Cadwallader.
Illustrated by Gustavo Mazali.*

Young readers might well see themselves in the selfish giant, based on Oscar Wilde's classic, who doesn't want to share his favourite possession.

Through the story they see how our actions not only affect others, but can also boomerang back and affect ourselves. They can empathise with the sad and lonely giant locked into his own cold selfishness and celebrate with him the realisation that if we give happiness to others we feel it ourselves too. Above all, this story is a humorous look at accepting and correcting the mistakes we make in life.

Charles Dickens
Oliver Twist

Retold by Jane Cadwallader.
Illustrated by Gustavo Mazali.

This is perhaps the most well-loved story by Charles Dickens.

Dickens asked his readers to 'have a heart that never gets hard'. As readers follow the life of Oliver Twist, a poor orphaned boy struggling against the dangers of life in 19th-century London, they can empathise with his childhood in a workhouse and his life with a gang of pickpockets. They can also share his relief that there were some good people, ready and willing to rescue a child in need.

William Makepeace Thackeray
Vanity Fair: A Novel without a Hero

Retold by Michael L. Freeman.
Illustrated by Gloria Pizzilli.

“Our story begins just outside Miss Pinkerton’s Academy for Young Ladies at Chiswick Mall in London. A large family carriage is waiting for two young ladies, Amelia Sedley and Becky Sharp.”

Vanity Fair was written 200 years ago, but it is a thoroughly modern story that provides us with universal truths about what it means to be human, in all its splendour – and with all its imperfections. It is a story full of memorable characters who accompany you on a fascinating journey through the first part of the nineteenth century.

Virginia Woolf
Mrs Dalloway

Adaptation and activities
by Richard J. Larkham.
Illustrated by Antonio Marinoni.

Mrs Dalloway is a novel that details a day in the life of Clarissa Dalloway in post-World War I. It is one of Woolf’s best-known novels.

London 1923. The First World War has been over for five years, but the effects are still being felt all round the metropolis. A socialite and politician’s wife prepares for one of her famous parties while somewhere else in the city an old friend contemplates the pain of past and present love, a war veteran struggles with his inner demons, and other characters live out the uncertainties and dramas of post-war English society. All touch each other in some way with their actions, directly or obliquely.

Francis Scott Fitzgerald The Great Gatsby

*Adaptation and activities
by Richard J. Larkhman.
Illustrated by Rodolfo Brocchini.*

Scott Fitzgerald's third novel was published in 1925 and has justifiably become a 20th century literary classic.

"Gatsby?" asked Daisy urgently. "What Gatsby?" Could it be the same young army lieutenant whom Daisy Fay met five years ago – and who owns a sumptuous house on Long Island, where New York society enjoys the best parties on offer? Is it just coincidence that Gatsby lives across the bay from Daisy – now married to wealthy polo-player Tom Buchanan? Midwesterner Nick Carraway is drawn into the dark world of Gatsby's past and present a world of hidden frustrations and superficial relationships which perfectly illustrates the "careless and confused" nature of America's Jazz Age.

Sillabus

Verbs: Present perfect simple and continuous, Past perfect simple and continuous with time clause by, Future tenses, Phrasal verbs.

Modal verbs: Could/could have (probability/past ability), Should, Will, Would/would have (future in the past), Might/might have (present/past possibility), Must/must have (present/past deduction), Must not (prohibition)
